NEW COLUMBIA RIVER CARGO MILL

St. Helens Mill Company, St. Helens, Has Begun Work-New Lumber Sorting Rig

From The Oregon Timberman.

St. Helena Mill company, which has just commenced operations at St. Helena, Oregon, has a model cargo plant. The site for the mill is ideal. The foundation under the mill is of rock, the support resting on concrete, thus insuring absolute rigidity, which is essential to successful operation. The mill company owns 3000 feet of water front. A 1000 food dock has been constructed. The depth of water is ample to provide safe dockage for any vessel which enters the Columbia river.

The mill is located on the Columbia river, at the intersection of the Willam ette slough, in which a five section boom has been driven, thus providing for easy segregation of the logs. Lipton Wants Another Try,

London, Oct. 16 .- Sir Thomas Lipton who will sail for New York tomorrow talked rather encouragingly today of his prospect for securing another race for the America's cup. "I am going to New York," he said, "in the hope of arranging another race. I realize that there are many difficulties in the way, but I am convinced that they can be overcome, because I know that the New York Yacht club is composed of good sportsmen, who, rather than have the race die a natural death, will do their utmost to meet me.

Burlington Reaching for Coast. New York, Oct., 16,-Rumors were prevalent today in railroad and financial circles to the effect that negotia tions are pending whereby the Burlington may secure an outlet to the Pacific coast through the purchase of an interroad. This would carry with it a part ownership of the Western Pacific, which is the Gould Pacific coast extension road. The Hill line, it is stated, is not looking to secure control of the Denver & Rio Grande, but joint ownera sorter was devised by Mr. Hanson with a view of reducing the cost of handling the lumber from the mill to the docks. The following is a description of the sorter system:

The usual type of lateral conveyor is provided, between the sections of which are placed six sets of rollers, properly driven, for earrying the stock longi-the roll set is elevated and the piece is rapidly carried longitudinally and discharged to its station. Any stock that might be closely following on the lateral conveyor is stopped by the ends of the rolls and held until the rolls are again depressed.

In the handling of the lumber, 350 trucks will be used to segregate the sizes, lengths and grades. From these trucks the lumber will be delivered directly to the vessel.
